Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Deetman (5,464,551).

Deetman discloses an aircraft hydraulic fluid composition which comprises a fire resistant phosphate ester base stock comprising between about 10% and about 100% by weight of a trialkyl phosphate, between about 0% and about 70% by weight of a dialkyl aryl phosphate, and from about 0% to about 25% by weight of an alkyl diaryl phosphate. The alkyl substituents of the phosphates contain between about 3 and 8 carbon atoms, preferably between 4 and 5 carbon atoms, and most preferably are isoalkyl groups such as isobutyl and isopentyl. The fluid composition additionally comprises an acid scavenger, an anti-erosion additive, a viscosity index improver, and an antioxidant. See column 2, line 26 to column 3, line 21. The examiner is of the position that the aircraft hydraulic fluid composition of Deetman clearly meets the limitations of the claimed hydraulic fluid composition. Applicants claims are drawn to a method for operating and lubricating hydraulic systems at a pressure of about 4000 psi by employing a phosphate ester hydraulic fluid composition which is encompassed by the applied prior art. The examiner is of the position that it would have been obvious to have employed a known aircraft hydraulic fluid in such a hydraulic system. Although Deetman does not specify a pressure at which the hydraulic fluid should operate, Deetman teaches that the hydraulic fluid exhibits improved hydrolytic and oxidative stability when used in aircraft applications. Applicants teach in the specification that phosphate ester based functional fluids useful as aircraft hydraulic fluids have been described in the Deetman reference and that standard operating pressure for aircraft hydraulic systems is nominally 3000 psi. The examiner is of the position that the stability properties of the phosphate ester hydraulic fluid composition of Deetman at such elevated operating pressures are inherent, that is, the known stability properties at such elevated pressures were always present but went unrecognized. The recitation of a characteristic inherent in a composition cannot serve as a basis upon which to predicate the issuance of a patent to a known method of using the composition. In re King, 801 F.2d 1324, 231 USPQ 136 (Fed. Cir. 1986); In re Pearson, 494 F.2d 1399, 181 USPQ 641 (CCPA 1974).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicants' disclosure.
